Telly and Robert, this is important because it starting to cause mold. If we get a mold remediation violation we have to use licensed company and they charge big bucks for doing the work and filing. Please make it a priority. The tenant was in the office this morning. She is an older woman and started to cry. She owes the current rent, but otherwise was up to date in her rent.

Her daughter was accused of breaking the door at 448, but the video, enhanced, shows it was not her, but someone who happened to have a similar jacket on. The building where the lock was broken was 444, not 448. 448 does not have the same entrance stairs as 444. She did say that at 448, if the door is pulled hard it opens. That lock does not close properly. Please check that out too. It is a liability.
